We, the members of the class of nineteen hundred and twenty-nine, in expression of appreciation for her untiring efforts as a teacher, as an advisor and as a friend, dedicate this Yearbook respectfully to

Martha S. Moffatt

A Realization

With the greatest admiration and esteem for Mr. Gammons, our principal, the class of twenty-nine hopes, in these few words, to express its high regard for his thoughtful, attentive guidance and many dearly prized services to us in our years of high school life. On every occasion, through his readiness of understanding, he has divined our needs and represented his true and desirable council. Mr. Gammons, however, has been to us not only an untiring and forbearing adviser but also a welcome associate and companion. Under his influence and tutelage, we have received benefits which will enable us to realize hopes and expectations, accreditable only to our high school training and education.

YEAR BOOK

History of the Class of 1929

(the truly interesting details are necessarily omitted)

With saddened hearts do we, the Senior Class, receive our diplomas and enter the wide, wide world to seek the fortunes Fate has prepared for us. We have given, each one of us, three years of our youthful lives in study at our cherished Alma Mater, and during three years we have made treasured acquaintanceships which, like ginger-pop, are growing more precious as time elapses. We have added to our fame by the transcendency of our extra-curricular activity and we are sure it has constituted an indispensable asset during our course. Musical and dramatic ventures, literary and athletic enterprises have distinguished our progress. Scholastic attainment has been brilliant. Yes, we are immeasurably sorry to leave Our School, but we're rather proud of our leavings.

Technically, we have been Sophomores, Juniors, and Seniors. Actually, we consider our three years as one, for the connections have been very distinct. For purposes of clarity, however, the synopsis is presented with due respect to consecutiveness.

As Sophomores, we endured the customary gaff, mental not physical. We remember well how one condescending apocrypha referred to us as "riot-loving children." Nevertheless, we carried out our thankful role of youngsters, heard the weekly oratory of the learned upper-classmen, enjoyed "So This is London," and succeeded (or failed) in our final examinations. Sylvia Hortter, president, Katherine Lane, vice-president, Anne Lacey, secretary, and Ernest Hesseltine, Jr., treasurer, comprised our able staff of officers.

Our Junior year passed more quickly than our Sophomoric existence. The beguiling influence of the year was that grand-gorgeous affair, the Junior Prom. On that occasion, coy girlhood and chivalric boyhood blossomed like Shelley's "thirsting flowers," the Clarion Diarist devoted ten of her rare lines to its praises, and everyone said it was outstanding. Later in the year, the Dramatic Club staged its annual playlet, "The Enemy." It was a fine production and several Juniors (Frances Meserve, Frances Donahue, Eleanor Hosmer, William Mower, Homer Collins, Kenneth Kingston, and Hershel Curry) were in the cast. The class officers for the year were Ernest Hesseltine, Jr., president; Donald Dodge, vice-president; Winifred Frazer, secretary, and Robert Keleher, treasurer. June twenty-second was the day of unrestrained exultation.

YEAR BOOK

When we returned in September, we were simply overcome by the news of the Assembly Hall's being too small to accommodate the school. Familiarly, this meant the doing away with a respected tradition. Seniors were compelled to speak before the school in order to graduate. They recognized the institution as invaluable, but at the same time they dreaded it as a beastly nuisance. Therefore, they rejoiced—but the incubus of forthcoming college-entrance-examinations checked their happiness. Ernest Hesseltine, Jr., president; Robert Keleher, vice-president; Winifred Frazer, secretary, and Donald Dodge, treasurer, have piloted the class during its last year.

The year, from a social standpoint, has been uncommonly successful. The Glee Clubs presented an operetta, the Dramatic Club a play, and both the Juniors and Seniors conducted Proms. The happy outcome of the operetta was in itself a tribute to the authors, Edgar Hegh and Alan Chakmakjian. Anent drama, we must mention Miss Margaret Mullen who left our class in its first year to become a "leading lady." Miss Mullen is now playing opposite William Hodge in California, but her professional debut was made at the Copley Theater in Boston. Both there and elsewhere, she has reflected very favorable comment upon the school.

Class Day and Graduation remain. They represent the zenith of high-school careers, and their results seem inevitably auspicious. After these important dates are passed, the Class will separate, never to meet again. The future of every Senior seems fraught with hope, but uncertainty as well. We cannot proceed further, though, and we think of Lowell who appreciated this condition. With his poetic expression we close our chapter:

*"From one stage of our being to the next,
We pass unconsciously o'er a slender bridge;
The momentary work of unseen hands."*

The Student Council has had another successful year. The Council is composed of eight from each senior home-room, two from each junior home-room, and one from each sophomore home-room.

This organization has been active in many affairs, and deserves credit for the fine way in which it has conducted fire-drills and directed the filing. The members enjoyed many spirited meetings. The Council was represented at the Student Council Convention by William Maney and John Driscoll.

The officers of the Council are: John Driscoll, President; Edwin Rushton, Vice-President; Dorothy Hilliard, Secretary, and Theodore Allen, Chairman of the Law and Order Committee.

Members of the A. A. were elected the first week of school. Their first duty was to sell season tickets. They also gave their approval of the athletes, chosen by the coaches, who were to receive the school letter.

The season ticket plan was abolished by the A. A. A special finance committee to decide about money matters was appointed by the A. A., consisting of the various coaches, Mr. Thompson, Mr. Gammons, and the president of the A. A. The benefit basketball game between the High School and the Alumni was promoted by this finance committee.

The officers of the A. A. this year were John Driscoll, President; Albert Gutzmann, Secretary, and Mr. Palmer, Treasurer.

As we review the last year of High School and note the work done by one organization or another, we find that the Dramatic Club, too, has had a successful and progressive year. As usual, it has done its best to furnish the school and community with worth-while dramatic art.

The program for the school has included "The Pot Boiler," "The Doctor of Lonesome Folk," and "Good Medicine," three short plays, all of which were presented in a highly commendable manner. Special commendation is due the production of the Christmas pantomime, "The Doctor of Lonesome Folk." Although obstacles arose hindering its production, the greatest of which was the coach's illness, the members of the club showed a spirit of loyalty and co-operation, and under the direction of the assistant coach, Miss Johnston, produced the pantomime in such an admirable fashion as to summon earnest praise from several authorities on dramatic art. The club served the community by inviting the public to this production, after which an informal tea was given for the guests. The club repeated "The Pot Boiler" in addition to "The Cricket on The Hearth" for its public performance, given in the town hall.

Scattered through the year's work have been social good times in the form of Hallowe'en and coasting parties, the response to several invitations from Tufts College to their plays, and the annual picnic and banquet. When you recollect that each of these affairs was a complete success in itself, can we blame the class for being proud of the year's accomplishments? Wouldn't you expect them to be reluctant to leave such an organization and its capable and beloved leader, "Auntie Helen" Matthews? They are.

Each issue of The Clarion has been unusually interesting and has represented the commendable work which the staff has done. Much of the credit is due to Miss Treat who has given the paper unceasing attention, and to Helen Douropulos, who has shown ability and efficiency as Editor-in-Chief.

The Girls' Club was organized in November, and has enjoyed several interesting meetings during the year. At the November meeting, Miss Pierce spoke to the club on "The Fine Arts of Living." The December meeting included a Christmas Party, with Santa Claus, "n' everything." At the next meeting, an informal discussion was led by some of the girls; in March the members attended a theatre party at the Copley Theatre where "The Ringer" was playing. The biggest treat of the year came in the last meeting when Miss Margaret Slattery spoke to the Club.

DEBATING CLUB

ROW I—E. CHANDLER, A. BOUDREAU, J. GRINNAN.

ROW II—D. BUCKLEY, P. HAWKES, J. CARTER, G. WALSH.

Through the efforts of several individuals, a boys' debating club was organized, adopting as its name "The Arlington High School Debating Society." Under the handicap of a small membership and the inexperience of the members, the organization entered upon its work.

The first step forward was the presentation of a debate to the student body on "Capital Punishment." The affirmative case of that discussion was upheld by Joseph Grinnan, '29, and Warren Bean, '31; the negative by Edmond Chandler, '29, and Amedee Boudreau, '29.

Further work in debating is carried on regularly when the organization meets in its semi-monthly meetings. At these meetings four boys from the Society debate on some current topic.

Another debate is planned for May 10, 1929, when The Arlington High School Debating Society will make its first public appearance, meeting Dorchester, on the question: "Resolved, That all towns and cities within an area of fifteen miles of Boston should be incorporated into the city of Boston." Arlington will defend the negative side of the question and will be represented by Edmond Chandler, Joseph Grinnan, and Amedee Boudreau.

The officers of the society are: Amedee R. Boudreau, President; Edmond A. Chandler, Vice-President; Joseph E. Grinnan, Treasurer; Warren M. Bean, Secretary, Miss Catherine F. Lawton, Moderator.

The Orchestra has held a prominent part in the activities of the school during the past three years. It is carried on under the direction of Miss Pierce and has been growing steadily larger, and now is composed of more than sixty members.

Three years ago Leonard Wood was concert-master. During that year a joint concert was given by the Orchestra and the Boys' and Girls' Glee Clubs. The Orchestra entered the Orchestra Conclave held in the Arena in May, and was awarded third prize.

In 1927-1928, Walter Angus was the concert-master. No concert was given that year but the Orchestra played at the Dramatic Club presentations, the Teachers' Club play, and the Women's Club Luncheon.

This year Ruth Young has been chosen as concert master. The Orchestra has been less active than formerly as the regular weekly assemblies of the two previous years have been omitted.

The opera "Lotus Blossom," written by Alan Vaness Chakmakjian and Edgar Desmond Hegh, was presented by the Glee Clubs and produced under the personal direction of Miss Grace G. Pierce, Music Director, and Mrs. Helen F. Matthews, Dramatic Director on March 8th and 9th. The scenery, costumes, lighting effects and stage properties were all designed and in many instances made in the Art Department under the direction of Marion I. Ford, Art Director.

The hockey team had another iceless winter and were lucky to get any practice between games. With only two veterans, Capt. The girls' Field Hockey team had a very successful season, winning the Southern League Championship. However, the championship of the Greater Boston League was won by Winchester when they defeated Arlington 3-2 in a very fast game.

An over-night trip to Fitchburg Normal made the season very eventful.

Baseball

ROW I—R. LoPRESTI, R. SHEA, R. SIMONDS, JR., W. LOWDER, C. ABBOTT.
ROW II—J. GRINNAN, D. WALLACE, A. COLUCI, R. DORRINGTON, C. LANE, E. GALLUCCI, L. BARRETT.

At the time of this writing the team has not yet played. Nor has it had much practice because of cold weather.

The outlook is quite promising, however. The star sophomore battery of last year is back again, consisting of Lo Presti, catcher, and Gaw, pitcher. With this strong battery and two other capable twirlers in Abbott and Lane, the battery seems to be the backbone of the team.

Other members of last year's team are Grennen, Dorrington, Shea, star second baseman, Clark, Simonds, a first class hitter and great fielder, and W. Lowder, star outfielder.

Gallucci (sophomore) seems to be the class at first base while Colucci appears to have third base clinched.

The team opens up with Medford and then plays Waltham. The rest of the schedule consists mostly of home games with the members of the Mystic Valley League.

With the new locker room as an incentive to victory and the veterans "Al" Gutzman, John Driscoll, Thelden Phinney, Lawrence O'Connell, and Arthur Duffy to form the nucleus of the team, it is predicted that "Doc" MacCarthy's boys will have a typical Arlington season. They are top-heavy favorites to win the Mystic Valley Championship for the third year in succession. Not since the event was originated have we failed to take first place.

The football team, led by the all-scholastic "Farmer" Rushton, had a profitable season. Although we lost to our traditional rival, Melrose, we were not hopelessly outclassed as they were the previous year.

Considerable credit is due to Coach Downs, Mr. Bevins, and "Doc" Geary for the sterling and indispensable service that they gave the team. Edson (Chippie) Gaw was unanimously elected to the captaincy for the coming year. The election is a popular one, for the big half-back was a capable performer on last year's eleven.

Class Song

(Tune of My Maryland)

With ling'ring hands we turn the page

That closes on our high school days.

With memories of friendships won.

This chapter of Life's book is done.

With courage only Youth can know

And fearless hearts prepared to go

Protected by God's guiding hand

We stand awaiting Life's command.

These happy days our youth has known

Will linger when the years have flown.

And when at last with dauntless will,

We've gained the summit of the Hill.

We'll turn the pages back once more

And live again the days of yore.

With happy smiles and yet a tear

Our high school days forever dear.
